

Thanksgiving Turkey or Chicken?

CBMC Baltimore Metro North
Presents

Edgar Rodriguez, Co-Owner
wHoly Chicken

More than a chicken restaurant, wHoly Chicken is good food prepared with an extra ingredient: Love. Customers come in the door for food and leave as friends. Edgar Rodriguez will provide some unique business insights and share his personal faith journey.

Edgar Rodriguez is a former third-party chemical lab corporate engineer and real estate investor. He was born in South America. Edgar graduated from college in New Jersey. After college, he joined and served in the US Navy.

Edgar and Patty Rodriguez have been married for over 30 years, and live in Jacobus, PA. They are the parents of three children who are attending college and embarking on their careers. Twenty years ago, their lives took an unexpected turn when during an encounter with Jesus Christ, and by His grace, their hope and lives were restored.

In October 2008 Edgar opened the wHoly Chicken restaurant in the city of York, Pennsylvania. This Thanksgiving, Edgar, his staff and volunteers will give away 3,000 Thanksgiving dinners. This will be the 7th year for the big Thanksgiving celebration, however Edgar and his family provide free food to the hungry all year long through special events and daily giving to those in need.
